The American Association of Private Lenders (AAPL) has partnered with Kensington Vanguard National Land Services, an independent full-service national title insurance and settlement agency.

“We are excited to be working with the AAPL and its membership,” Kensington Vanguard co-CEO Brian Cooper said. “By providing both educational opportunities and support throughout transactions, we are confident we will be a great resource for the organization and its constituents.”

“We could not be more thrilled with this strategic relationship,” AAPL Executive Director Matt Benson said. “It brings additional value to our members by providing unparalleled services to ensure smooth loan closings. They will be a tremendous resource to the AAPL and our members regarding training and title related matters at the transaction level.”
